THE HISTORY

Constructed in 1874 by Edward J Pearson, built to house The Order of Oddfellows. Made mainly from kauri. Pearson during this time moved to Thames giving up his carpenter skills to try his luck at the Goldfields. By 1886 Pearson returned to Hamilton and purchased the site starting a Carbolic and Sand Soap Factory. Using the pumice deposits from the Waikato River The Soap became a success.

The building has had many lives including a corset factory, storage facility and possibly a theatre, in original plans a projector room is shown. In 2002 the building undertook a major change becoming a bar known as The Cook. The building has stood the test of time, standing proudly amongst Hamilton East Businesses. We are excited to be part of this building's new chapter and become a haven for locals and visitors.
